TWO CHARGED WITH SLANDER

Mercury Hits 112½; Hottest in 60 Years Here

Record Summer's Heat Established; Hit 106 on Sunday

Compares With Season's Previous High of 107, Recorded in Late June

102 ON SATURDAY Scattered Showers in State, But Heat Will Hold Several Days

A 60-year heat record for southwest Arkansas was broken at 3:15 o'clock Monday afternoon when the mercury in the official thermometer at the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station went to 112½ degrees. George W. Ware, in charge of the station, announced.

The heat mounted sensationally, moving up from 108 to 112½ in the last hour before the reading was taken.

106 Degrees Sunday

The summer's heat record was approximated here Sunday when a relentless sun bore down to send the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment station thermometer to 106 degrees.

The highest reading in Hope this year was recorded by the experiment station the latter part of June with a reading of 107 degrees.

Saturday's maximum was 102 degrees the station records showed.

High temperature records throughout the state were reported.

Conway with 112 degrees had the hottest weather in the state. Arkadelphia and El Dorado both had 108. In the latter city the work was within half a degree of the summer's record.

Other readings Sunday included: Rogers, 110; Fort Smith, 109; Fayetteville, 106; Bentonville, 109.

The weather bureau predicted the present hot spell would continue two or three days.

Much-needed rain was reported from several sections of the state.

Howard Hughes Off on Long Air Trip

Loads Up 1,250 Gallons of Gas—May Be Starting Around World

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman flier, took off early Monday from Union terminal in his transport plane loaded with 1,250 gallons of fuel.

His destination was unannounced although he recently received a federal allotment of a special radio wave length for possible use on a flight around the world.

Zioncheck Widow Awaits Funeral

Delegation of Congressmen to Attend Ceremony in Seattle, Wash.

SEATTLE, Wash.—(AP)—The young widow of Representative Marion Zioncheck waited sorrowfully Monday for a delegation of congressmen coming to pay their respects to their colleague.

Twice since the congressman plunged to death from a fifth story window last Friday Mrs. Zioncheck has visited the limy-floored funeral chapel where the body lies in state.

Star to Hold Election Party on Walnut St. Tuesday Night

The usual election party will be held in front of The Star office, South Walnut street, Hope, on Tuesday night—with a complete broadcast of returns.

The full election wire of the Associated Press will bring in the results from the 75 counties on the state races, and The Star will compile complete tabulations on local and district races.

Hempstead county election officials are asked to report their tabulations to The Star as soon as the precinct count is completed. Wherever you are, just telephone Hope 768 collect.

The usual election extra will be issued about midnight Tuesday, and all rural subscribers will be served with this edition Wednesday morning.

Americans Must Get Out of Spain

Situation Increasingly Dangerous—Civil War Now in Its 23d Day

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—American embassy officials, alarmed by what they described as an increasingly threatening situation attended by much shooting, have urged all Americans in Madrid to leave the Spanish capital, it was learned at the Department of State Monday.

Rebels Capture Town

LISBON, Portugal.—(AP)—The town and province of Santander, on the Bay of Biscay, have fallen before rebel attacks, the insurgent radio station at Tetuan, Spanish Morocco, announced Monday.

By the Associated Press

The capture of 13 Spanish communities dominated by rebels was announced by Madrid's loyalist troops Monday, as the insurgents massed 12,000 men for an offensive against San Sebastian and Irun.

The government predicted a quick end to the civil war, now in its 23d day.

The British government forwarded a protest to the Spanish belligerents in connection with the death of a British subject, Captain Rupert Swale, reported slain by insurgent gunfire.

The message said the British government reserved the right "to obtain compensation."

800 Rebels Killed

MADRID, Spain.—(AP)—Eight hundred rebels were killed, many wounded and several taken prisoner Sunday, the government reported, in a nine-hour battle at Navalperal outside Madrid.

Rebels Made a Desperate Effort to capture the Guadarrama mountain city, about 50 miles north of the capital, but their offense was crushed with the asserted loss of only four loyal soldiers. Thirty-five were wounded. Colonel Mangada who directed the battle, said.

The fleeing Fascists left behind many machine guns and great quantities of ammunition. It was a major victory of the 21-day civil war, the government asserted.

Flated by their success, the loyalists said great offensive on all fronts would be launched within the next two days in an effort to end the rebellion. The insurgents were declared disorganized and without morale. The government claimed many were deserting to join loyal forces.

"The insurgents are now fighting a purely defensive fight," the loyalists asserted. "They are unable to make gains and are attempting to hold present positions."

A victory feast was proclaimed in the town of Villamayor de Santiago, Cuenca province. Trucks laden with food and wine were sent to Colonel Mangada's troops.

Headquarters in Flanes

(From Bayonne, France, came reports of another rebel attack. Northern headquarters of the Fascists near Oyarzun, dispatches from the French border town asserted, were in flames after bombardment by loyal artillery. A munitions storehouse nearby exploded and caused serious damage.)

Burgos, Northern headquarters of Gen. Emilio Mola, reported the rebels had called a halt to await the advance from the South by Gen. Francisco Franco's forces before a concerted drive on Madrid.

Speedy Hutson and S. Atkins in Crash

Injured When Car Is Forced Off Highway Returning From Prescott

Andrew (Speedy) Hutson and Steve Atkins of Hope were injured Sunday night when their automobile left the road and struck a ditch two miles north of Hope on the old Emmet highway.

Hutson was confined to his home on South Main street Monday with gashes about the chin and left knee and bruises about the body. His condition is not serious.

Atkins sustained injuries to the chest, left thumb and bruises about the body. Atkins is not hurt seriously. The car, owned and driven by Atkins, was not badly damaged.

Hutson and Atkins were returning to Hope from Prescott when a second car approached, crowding them from the highway. The second car failed to stop after the accident, Hutson said.

Commerce Bureau Sees Debt Issue

Must Narrow the Gap Between U. S. Revenue and Expenditures

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Saying there was a mounting public debt, the Commerce Department expressed belief Sunday that future business prospects were conditioned in part upon the possibility of narrowing the gap between government expenditures and receipts.

In a "world economic review" for 1933, the department said that "the government deficit springs from the root of unemployment, which is still the major problem confronting the country."

"Most of the recent increase in the public debt has resulted from emergency expenditures which will be reduced as the need diminishes," the review said. "At this date the evidences of need are still manifest."

Saying the public debt "has continued to mount rapidly, notwithstanding the substantial increase in the national revenues," the report added:

"Future business prospects are in a degree conditioned upon the possibility of bringing expenditures more in line with receipts and thus eliminating, partially at least, the uncertainties prevailing in connection with future taxation and other budgetary problems."

Estimating the gross federal debt at $30,557,000,000 at the end of 1935, the report said this was 7.5 per cent above the total for 1934 and about double that for 1930. It added that "the gross debt of state and local governments, however, has changed but little during the past three years."

2 Men "Run" Toll Bridge at Fulton

Robbery Report Proves False Alarm, But Men Failed to Pay Toll

Two young men driving a green touring car "ran" the Fulton toll bridge about 2 p. m. Monday, causing reports to reach Hope that the bridge had been robbed.

The bridge-keeper, in a telephone conversation with The Star, said that the bridge had not been robbed.

Police Chief John W. Ridgill sent two officers toward Fulton to stop the car. The car apparently turned off the main highway and it had not been located at 3:30 p. m.

A manure set 1500 years old, and almost exactly similar to the kind in use today, was discovered during some excavation work in Hungary last year.

4,436 Tax Receipts in Hempstead, Best of Several Years

Poll Tax List in Nevada County This Year Is Announced as 2,610

TOURS ARE ENDED

Stump Campaigns for Local Offices Closes in Both Counties Monday

A big county vote was predicted Monday by officials as Hempstead county electors prepared to ballot in the Democratic primary election Tuesday.

A total of 4,436 poll tax receipts have been issued, it was reported from the sheriff's office at Washington. Officials said the voting strength was the largest in recent years.

The Nevada county sheriff's office at Prescott reported Monday that 2,610 poll tax receipts had been issued to Nevada county citizens. This figure is slightly under receipts two years ago.

Speaking schedules in both counties were to be concluded Monday.

Hempstead county candidates held an all-day speaking Monday from the Oglesby school grounds. Nevada county candidates were to wind up their stump tour at 8 p. m. Monday at Prescott.

The Hempstead campaign was marked by frequent verbal clashes between Sheriff Jim Bearden and Frank Ward. In the Nevada campaign interest centered mostly in the race for county judge between J. W. Bradley and E. H. Weaver.

Negro Confesses Clevenger Killing

Hotel Hall Boy Alleged to Have Admitted the Slaying of Co-ed

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(AP)—The mysterious hotel room murder of 18-year-old Helen Clevenger, young woman in co-ed, was solved Sunday, Sheriff Lawrence E. Brown said, with the arrest and confession of Martin Moore, 22, a negro hall boy.

Moore, after all night questioning, signed a statement that he crept into the girl's room at the fashionable Battery Park hotel the night of July 15, bent upon robbery, and killed Miss Clevenger when she cried out.

The negro said he did not expect to find the New York University student in her room, since the door was unlocked, but when I got in there she screamed, and that's why I shot her."

"She screamed some more," he added, "and started to run out. I struck her with the gun. When she fell on the floor I struck her several times more to stop her screaming, as I was scared and did not want to be caught."

Moore denied he made any attempt to ravish the girl, although a physician said there appeared to be some evidence of an attempted assault.

The arrest and confession of the hotel employee ended a three weeks investigation of a crime which had baffled authorities and led to the detention and subsequent release of eight persons. The last of these was released Sunday afternoon after Moore's confession. He was Daniel H. Gaddy, 28, hotel night watchman, who had been detained for questioning almost since the crime.

Previously Sheriff Brown, chief investigator of the murder, had regarded Gaddy as the "key man to the whole mystery" and said that "when Gaddy gets ready to talk, we'll break this case wide open. Today he released the night watchman and said he was 'completely exonerated.'"

The green pajama-clad body of the victim was found in her second floor room about 8 a. m., July 16, by her uncle, Prof. W. L. Clevenger of North Carolina State College, with whom she was traveling.

A bullet had pierced her heart and lodged in her back and her face had been mutilated by a severe battering with some heavy instrument. Her legs were thrown under her body, and officers said the position indicated the States Island (N. Y.) girl was on her knees pleading for her life when she was slain.

Moore, the sheriff said, was arrested Sunday night on the tip of Banks Taylor, negro pantry boy at the hotel, who had been secretly detained Thursday night for questioning.

Brown said Taylor told him that the hall boy recently had come into possession of a pistol. Then the sheriff took Taylor to Moore's home and confronted him with the story. Moore

Election Officials Opposed at "Spa"

Similar Challenges in Crittenden County Is Thrown Out by Judge

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—Attorney C. Floyd Huff said Monday he had been unable to locate Circuit Judge Earl Witt to bring a motion seeking to disqualify the jurist for hearing a suit charging law violations in the selection of Garland county election officials.

Huff, who filed the motion for Carl Bailey, candidate for governor, and Elmer Rackett, running for prosecuting attorney, said if he did not get the suit before Judge Witt Monday, "We have laid the basis for a contest of the election in Garland county."

Crittenden Suit Denied

MARION, Ark.—(AP)—Circuit Judge G. E. Keck of Blytheville late Saturday denied Carl E. Bailey, candidate for governor, a writ of mandamus forcing revision of the list of Crittenden county election officials.

In a suit filed Friday, Bailey charged that election judges and clerks were selected by "fraudulent procedure" at a meeting of the county Democratic Committee "controlled" by Sheriff Howard Curdin and County Judge J. C. Johnson, supporters of his opponent, Ed F. McDonald.

He asked that the action of the committee be cancelled and that the "minority faction" be given representation.

Lawyers for Bailey sought to show that the minority representation among the election officials was in fact only a part of the minority and allied with the Curdin-Johnson group.

Opposing lawyers contended that the committee selections were legal and that "it would be impossible for all the

Forest Fires Burn in Seven States

English King's Ranch in Alberta, Canada, Reported in Danger

By the Associated Press

Forest fires burned ahead stubbornly in seven states Monday destroying valuable timber, homes and farms, defying the efforts of thousands of men.

While numerous fire-fighting crews and scores of evacuated families looked hopefully for rain, smoke poured over wooded sections in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington and California.

Brush fires ran wild in Alberta, Canada, endangering a ranch owned by King Edward of England.

69 Are Killed in Highway Crashes

Traffic Penalties Give Perfect Safety Record to Pueblo, Colo.

By the Associated Press

Automobile accidents took at least 69 lives through out the nation over the week-end.

At Chattanooga, Tenn., four persons were killed when their car plunged off the side of Lookout mountain into a 100-foot ravine.

In the field of accident prevention, the city of Pueblo, Colo., population 50,000, attributed its record of no automobile deaths during the first half of the year to "stiff penalties" for traffic offenses, and judges who "play no favorites."

An Albany man who has driven for 37 years without an accident or a conviction on a traffic charge was elected as New York's "safest driver."

Sheriff Bearden Arrests 2; Seizes Ward Pamphlets

W. B. Watson and J. Fred Thompson, Out-of-County Men, Are Held

AFFIDAVIT CLAIMED

Ward Strikes Back, Saying Men Will Be Set Free On Bond

Two men who Sheriff Jim Bearden charged have "libeled and slandered me in a pamphlet they had printed and were preparing to circulate over the county" were arrested and lodged in jail at Washington Monday.

They are formally charged with libel and slander, the sheriff said.

The men, termed "political propagandists" by the sheriff, were booked as W. B. Watson and J. Fred Thompson. The sheriff quoted them as saying that they were from "several states."

Bearden said that the pair admitted they were paid by Frank Ward, opponent of Bearden in the sheriff's race, to print and circulate the pamphlets to every voting precinct in the county Monday night and then disappear from the county.

The men and more than a thousand pamphlets were seized by the sheriff and Deputy R. O. Robins in Washington early Monday morning.

Bearden said that the pamphlet charged that "I collected tax money and stuck it in my pocket."

Bearden's Statement

In a statement Bearden said:

"These same two men approached me several days ago and agreed to print and circulate any statement that I might want to say about my opponent, Ward.

"I told them that they had come to the wrong man. That I didn't go in for cheap and dirty politics. After I turned them down they went to Ward, hatched up a defamatory statement about me and printed it.

"Well, they didn't get to circulate that dirty sheet, and they're going to stay in jail or prove what they said about me.

"I promised my wife and Almighty God that I wouldn't stand for this kind of thing—and I'm not," Bearden snapped.

The sheriff said that he would "fingerprint the pair" and would "hold them for further investigation" besides the formal charge of libel and slander.

Ward's Statement

"I ordered some circulars from a couple of publicity men who had headquarters in Washington and who had been doing some publicity work for candidates in this and other counties, having their circulars printed in Washington.

"This circular was written by one of these men at my order, they using the material which I furnished them. This material was in substance the same I have used on the stump against my opponent all over the county. It had been reported and previously printed in the columns of the Hope Star.

"After these circulars were printed and a few of them distributed in Hope, Mr. Bearden got hold of one of them in Hope and rushed to Washington where he confiscated the remainder of the circulars from these two men and threw them in jail.

"Again I wish to say there was nothing in this circular that I had not previously made statement of on the stump during this campaign."

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—Short takes: The ineffable sadness and general air of futility hovering over Greia Garbo is enhanced by recollection of the poor woman's life in some of her pictures. She has been murdered by a lunatic, killed in an automobile wreck, shot by a firing squad, and thrown under a train.

And now, in "Camille," she's getting ready to cough herself to death. The other day, though, Miss Garbo perked up enough to stage a little joke. Scores of actresses have been tested lately for last-minute roles in "The Good Earth," especially for the role of Lotus (finally won by Tilly Losch, the dancer).

Garbo went to the makeup department and emerged an hour later not as Camille, but as a Chinese!

Man in Room
Speaking of makeup surprises: Director William Wyler startled the "Duckworth" company by appearing in his own picture as a violinist. Not only is he a violinist, but he decided he looked more like one than the professional fiddler hired by the casting and all the other by-products of ordinary human stupidity would be abolished. Unfortunately, the world at large misunderstood the venture, public hostility was aroused, and the experiment was wrecked—at the price of the lives of the experimenters.

Mr. Stapledon has written an interesting and ingenious tale, and has made it a vehicle for a good many searching comments on the ghastly errors we ordinary mortals make in our attempts to keep society going.

Same Talk on Diet
Of books about diet and the human figure there is no end; the most recent one—and, incidentally, one of the sanest—is "Food Fitness and Figure," by Jacob Buckstein (Emerson: $2).

Mr. Buckstein, who has the knack of writing clearly about rather abstruse matters, gives an excellent review of the innumerable food fads of the day, debunking them very skillfully, and then presents some safe and sane dietary formulas.

So he took the actor into Mary Astor's dressing room and borrowed his costume. A few minutes later Miss Astor went to her dressing room and shrieked at the sight of a strange and almost completely unclad man sitting at her makeup table.

Back to Dialect
Cast irony: Helen Wood, a beauty contest winner from down Dixie way, had beauty and talent but her studio couldn't pardon her southern accent. She was told she'd have to get rid of it—and she did, with a long, intensive course of training.

So now they've put her in a picture called, "Can This Be Dixie?" and she has to learn to drawl and drop her r's. George Davis, a comedian, also is having dialect trouble. He's a Dutchman, Holland-born, but in 25 years of acting he never has had a Dutch role. Audiences have seen him, instead, as a Frenchman, Russian, Italian, Irishman, Swede, Scotsman, Turk, Chinese, Eskimo, and Indian. He speaks several languages and is in demand for foreign versions of Hollywood films. But he guesses he has forgotten most of his Dutch.

Minsky's Goes Hollywood
You couldn't guess the show commanding the highest premiere prices in town. Not grand opera in the Hollywood Bowl, nor yet a theatrical classic fresh from Broadway.

This is a presentation of Minsky burlesque—at a $10 top! My guess is that a lot of censorial sparks will be flying hereabouts before autumn. Directors of a dozen new musicals have ordered a scantiness of costuming never seen on any screen. Well, hardly ever.

Marlene Dietrich's next picture will be a musical under the slightly misleading title of "Angel." Several companies bidding for it a year ago lost interest when the censors said it was too naughty for American manufacture.

In London, incidentally, the censors made only one deletion from "The Great Ziegfeld." That was the term, "sex appeal."

Some other verboten words: bag, bat, bum, bloody, Chink, Dago, Wop, Yid, Frog, gigolo, Greaser, hot, Hun, joint, louse, lover, punk, skirt, tramp, and alley cat. Nuts is okay; nertz objectionable.

Tobacco Found to Affect Circulation, Regardless of Person's Race or Sex

For years doctors have contended that tobacco smoking is harmful to persons who have a condition of the thromboangiitis obliterans, and more commonly known as Buerger's diseased vessels scientifically called case. For long it had been thought that this condition occurred only in men, particularly those of the Jewish race.

It occurred, therefore, to a number of investigators in the University of Michigan to study the effects of tobacco on the circulation of the blood, particularly in relationship to sex, and race, and to sensitivity of the skin to tobacco.

They found that cigarette smoking produced a decrease in temperature of the skin on the fingers and toes, and increased the rate of pulse and blood pressure in women, as well as in men.
Moreover, the responses were of about the same degree.

The studies showed no reason why this disease of the blood vessels should affect men more than women.
If smoking is the cause of this disease, it would be expected that it would appear more frequently in women in the future, because there is no question that many more women are smoking now than did in the past.

U. S. consumption of cigarettes has risen from 10,000,000,000 in 1915 to almost 140,000,000,000 in 1936.

When studies were made of Jewish smokers, in contrast to others, it was found that the average decrease in temperature of the skin on fingers and toes, and the average increase in blood pressure and in pulse rates, were greater generally in Jewish men than in those of other races.

The differences were more decided in connection with temperatures of the skin.

In an endeavor to explain this result, the authors point out that they found Jewish smokers in general smoking more rapidly and more deeply, and inhaling much more than other smokers.

On the other hand, sensitivity to tobacco, as demonstrated by tests of the skin, was found twice as often in those who were not Jewish as in those who were.

In the women who were tested, each smoking two cigarettes, it was found that there was a decrease in temperature of the skin of fingers and toes and an increase in blood pressure and pulse rate, similar to those observed in men.

The mere fact that tobacco can cause this type of reaction should be definite indication that excessive indulgence in tobacco is harmful.

There still are many facts relating to cause and method of treatment of Buerger's disease that doctors do not yet fully understand. It should be apparent, however, that quite definitely there is a relationship between the ailment and tobacco smoking, and any one who has this condition, or who seems to have a predilection toward it, should certainly take into account the effects of tobacco in planning the hygiene of his daily life.

COUNTY OF HEMPSTEAD

I, C. P. Zimmerly, on oath state that I am sixty-six years of age; that I reside on the Springhill Road, about one-half mile South of the City Limits of the City of Hope, Arkansas, and have resided in Hempstead County, Arkansas, for the past twenty-six years.

On the 13th day of June, 1935, I paid to Mr.
J. E. Bearden, Sheriff and Collector of Hemp-stead County, Arkansas, the sum of $4.47, which was my personal taxes and my poll tax. I never received an official receipt for my personal property taxes. He did give me a receipt which in words and figures reads as follows:

"6-13-35
Received of C. P. Zimmerly taxes $4.47 and poll
J. E. B."

I have been informed that my name did not appear on the poll tax list as having paid my 1934 taxes; and I do know that Mr. Bearden never did give me an official receipt for my personal property taxes; he did give me a poll tax receipt. I do not know what became of the money that I paid him.

C. P. Zimmerly

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10th day of August, 1936.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Very possibly this problem is before many mothers—is it better to take the baby along when she and her husband take their vacation, or leave him at home?

Not long ago this column contained suggestions for mothers traveling with young children. But I did not attempt to help her out in her decision about leaving him. Nor do I now, because so many things touch each case that I could not possibly know about.

But taking one letter as a basis for discussion, it might help to crystallize thought on the subject.

This mother has an only child, about two and a half years old. His grandfather wants to take a long motor trip to the home folk. A competent relative would stay and keep the baby, attending to his regular routine and consulting his own doctor when necessary.

Child's Welfare Paramount
However, this mother acknowledges that her love for the child is unusual, pertaining to circumstances of birth.

There is no question from her letter, that she represents her world. She would worry about the strain of the trip through hot country, but she would worry more while away if anything happened and she would be unable to get back quickly.

Looking at it calmly, I believe her own emotions are paramount to her, although unconsciously so. I cannot weigh facts, but in her own mind there must be something to tell her what would be best for the child.

There is nothing wrong with parents leaving a child in emergencies with someone as responsible and as competent and kind as the mother herself.

And, unless she is going to worry herself into hysterics while away, she will be better for a vacation herself.
Just as John needs his precious two weeks away from the office, so does she need time off, if only from her own intense passion for her child. It may help to clear her vision and enable her to get a perspective on child and self that each mother needs and too seldom gets. She will be fortified in physical strength, too, and this is the first asset of any good mother.

Far Away, Yet Near Home
I am not urging her to leave him. It may be that a tie as close as theirs will affect the baby if broken. He may not want to eat or play for a while after she leaves. But again, I do not think this serious, for a few days he will be himself again. And remember Odipus, would it not be agonizing thing for him to lose the object of his fixed desires for a little while?

His mother can keep in close touch with home, and in these timeless days return almost instantly if anything did happen. As far as accidents go, which is the most dangerous, road or home.

Neighbors? Well, one cannot run one's life entirely by them, even the kindest. But as I said, it all depends.

unhappily.
He was neither especially smart nor especially daring, and only his habit of handing out $20 gold pieces—taken from Uncle Sam's mail pouches—to chance acquaintances gave him his Robin Hood reputation. The stuff of dime novel glory just wasn't in him.

Land of "Queer" Folk
"Old John," by Olaf Stapledon (Dutton: $2), is an exceedingly imaginative novel based on the theory that the human race now and then produces freaks whose intellectual powers are five or six times as great as those of ordinary folk.

Old John was such a person. Born in post-war England, he was so smart that at the age of 12 he understood exactly what was wrong with human civilization; at the age of 20 he set out to fix it.

Among his exceptional powers was the gift of telepathy. With this instrument he explored the minds of his contemporaries and dug up a baker's dozen of persons who had minds like his own—people so much brighter than the average that they were looked upon as "queer."

Banding them together, Old John sailed away to a South Sea island to lay the foundations for a new civilization in which war, disease, poverty

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

The glamour that drifts about the head of the bad man usually is pretty synthetic. Only the incurable human tendency to romanticize things makes the bad man look gay and dashing.

There is good proof of this fact in Wayne Gard's new biography, "Sam Bass" (Houghton-Mifflin: $2.50).

Sam Bass was one of the great train robbers of the southwest. His career was short but spectacular; and after the Texas Rangers finally shot him, he became ensnared in legend and folk lore, so that cowboys still are singing a homely and rather intermin-able song about his exploits.

But Mr. Gard makes it clear that Bass just didn't rate all of this glory.
He was simply a burly illiterate who started going wrong as soon as he was old enough to do so; he made a good deal of money because the puffing little trains of the post-Civil War era were ridiculously easy to rob, and he seems to have survived his innumerable pitched battles with indignation, posses chiefly because the ordinary man of his time and place was no

Each lovely, unexpected thing I see Along the highway of my common day Wakes in my heart a singing melody Which travels with me all the weary way. Sometimes it is a clump of blossoms, wild and sweet, Which lift pure faces from the dusty grass. Sometimes when children run with eager feet, My own youth quickens, just to see them pass. No day so gray, but some odd golden gleam Brightens to sudden radiance, and I see— As if Heaven's doors were opened in a dream— The tender grace of God's divinity. —Selected.

We'll Tell Them Judge Cook---

The ring politicians for the past six weeks have published and spoken distorted, untrue statements regarding the remarkable accomplishments of Judge R. A. Cook during his tenure as County Judge of Pulaski. In spite of the fact that both of them are dyed-in-the-wool professional politicians they are still either unable to understand court records, or they have wilfully and maliciously MISINFORMED the voters. Either reason is reason enough for the overwhelmingly defeat they will suffer to morrow at the hands of the very people they have tried to MISLEAD. Figures don't lie... but liars sometimes figure. A 456.25 SAVING

And Thousands of Other Proportionate Tax Reductions
The County Records Prove It!

A $414.38 SAVING

... the "County Consolidation" Myth!

Certainly, after the 18 years he has been on the public payrolls as some sort of a public servant, Mr. McDonald SHOULD know something about how this government is operated. If he does not, he is not mentally equipped to be our Governor... if he does and has misrepresented the facts to the people he is not morally equipped to be our Governor, for he MIGHT mislead or misinform us on matters affecting the peoples' welfare to a far greater degree.

Mr. McDonald Should Know

Only A CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Voted by the people would even prepare the way for any consolidations of Counties! The People Themselves Alone Could Bring Such a Change About.

... yes and $251,011.83 for CHARITY

The Figures Below Taken From the State Comptroller's Audit Report

County Records Prove It!

1933	$260,561.60	$62,483.03	24%
1934	$250,162.56	$60,797.43	24%
1935	$268,085.68	$67,731.37	25%

Notwithstanding the fact that Judge Cook's opponents are shuddering crocodile tears over the widows and orphans Judge Cook is said to be starving, the official County records, according to the State Comptroller PROVE an altogether different story. The fact is that Pulaski county under Judge Cook has been paying out about TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT of its total regular tax revenue for CHARITY purposes, and in addition, the Federal Government has literally supplemented the County's welfare work by giving for THOUSANDS of indigents not provided for by in the appropriations granted Judge Cook by the Quorum Court.

Forced to Accept Sugar Allotment

But Spanish Planter Thinks It Is Taking 'Something for Nothing'

MANATEE, Fla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Don Maximino Caraballo of Guagua, Pampanga, must take $7,500 in sugar processing tax money whether he wants it or not.

The aged don was dead set against accepting the money, because, he maintains, it was offered "in violation of the laws of God."

The don is a land owner, and upon his lands grew sugar cane. The sun shone, the rains fell, all nature smiled and the don's crop was something to boast about.

Then came the New Deal's crop control plan. The don's cane was destroyed by fire. The Pampanga sugar mill was authorized to pay him $7,500 out of processing tax funds.

His sons, heirs to the don's fortune, insisted that he accept it, and when he continued to refuse the funds they went into court. The court ordered that the money be paid to the heirs.

His idealism shattered, the aged don just shook his head as the check was handed to his sons. He told friends that he would not be responsible for any act of divine providence that may befall his sons.

"Been hunting, eh? Have any luck?"

"Yes. Great luck."

"What did you get?"

"Back."

Paramount Issue Lacking in Nation

Still No Specific Question Between Major Political Parties

By BYRON PRICE
Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

It is too early to jump at conclusions, but many of those in the active stream of national politics are wondering whether the present campaign, for all its fury and depth of feeling, ever will produce a genuine "paramount issue."

Certainly there is no sign thus far that any one specific question of national policy is emerging above all others, or is on the way to universal recognition as the hinge on which the election will turn.

The great decisive campaigns of history have produced such issues, and so have some of the lesser campaigns. Slavery, free silver and other definitive topics of dispute have inspired political battles which will live forever. Four years ago an individual—Herbert Hoover—became rather definitely the major issue.

It may be that, before November, Franklin D. Roosevelt will be agreed upon as the paramount issue of 1936. There are those who doubt it seriously, for to a peculiar degree popular opinion often has shown a tendency to distinguish between Mr. Roosevelt and his policies, and to be for one and against the other.

At any rate, no such stage has been reached so far. Nearly all political leaders and commentators state the "paramount issue" differently.

A highly illuminating observation on this subject was made recently by Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, who predicted that the campaign would be fought out on "a combination of major group issues."

"No one issue is paramount," said Mr. Vandenberg. "This is an interesting campaign in that it presents a series of major issues, each a personal intense challenge to a group of the electorate."

Reiteration of the word "group" is significant. There can be no question that group activity, group organization, and group appeal has reached an extraordinary stage. The most intensive efforts are in progress participated in by leaders in all parties, to consolidate the farmers, the laborers, business, the unemployed, the women, even the young people and the old people, for political action.

Each political camp blames someone else for this situation. Appeals to conservatism are denounced by the upper crust to smother the masses, and appeals to the masses are answered with charges of promoting class hatred.

Whoever is responsible the situation presents, as Grover Cleveland would have said, not a theory, but a condition; and all political managers are forced to recognize it, and deal with it.

Such a condition, in which almost every organized group is assumed on general principles to be in politics this year, has had more or less embarrassing consequences in some quarters. For instance, consider the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. It was founded as a business venture purely, and heretofore has kept a pretty clear reputation for non-partisanship. One former president of the chamber sits today high in New Deal councils. Another is bitterly active against the New Deal.

Some time ago, the chamber condemned various New Deal policies. Since then, it often has been linked in political utterances with those who are seeking to unhorse Mr. Roosevelt. In that situation, the organization's July statement hailing the advent of a notable business recovery—a perfectly normal and routine thing for the chamber to do under ordinary circumstances—caused much political remarks and speculation.

There is sound reason for believing the July statement was issued advisedly, and with keen appreciation of the "group" repercussions likely to follow.

"I got you," the fighter nodded. "I'll do just like you say, but suppose he does get his right over, anyway? What'll I do?"

"Nothin'," the second instructed. "Just relax an' me an' the referee'll carry you to your corner."

Lumberjacks Lose in State Tourney

Benton Independents Beat Locals in First Round, by 8 to 5

The Williams Lumber company baseball team was eliminated in the first round of the state sandlot tournament Sunday at Little Rock, losing to Benton, 8 to 5.

Benton rapped Elliott and McDowell for a total of 15 hits. Hope collected nine off Standerfer, Benton hurler. Benton put on a belated rally to overcome the Lumberjacks, scoring four runs in the eighth inning. Each team made four errors. Four teams survived first rounds of play. They are American Bakery of Little Rock. The bakery team scored a 15 to 6 victory over Mena Travelers. The Camden Kratsmen, defending champions, routed Taylor, 7 to 4. Watson Grocery of Little Rock scored a disputed 1 to 0 win over the Morrilton Red Sox, and Benton won over Hope, 8 to 5. Two players, Reggie Estes, star pitcher of Mena, and O. Stewart, Taylor catcher, were overcome by heat. Estes was carried from the field in the seventh inning. Stewart retired from the game in the second inning. Semifinals will be played Monday night with the first game between Southern Kratsmen and Watson Grocery. The American Bakery will meet Benton in the second game. The championship game will be played Tuesday night.

Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, left, and Gov. James V. Alfred of Texas are rated big men in politics, but when they met at the Texas Centennial, they were dwarfed by Governor Horner's "bodyguard," Robert Wadlow, of Alton, Ill. The ceiling is low, so a clear view can be obtained of "Big Boy" Wadlow, who at 17 is 8 feet 5 inches tall.

Calls German Women

BERLIN.—(AP)—German women are increasingly affected by the "wanderlust," the women's bureau of the German labor front announced. Among the more than five millions of Germany who so far participated in the labor front's "strength through joy" vacation trips, 43.95 per cent were women.

How Women Find Happiness Alone

Are Better At It Than Men —The "Old Maid" Theory Is Dead Ghost

By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—She used to be the old maid—

Now she's "the extra woman" and, according to Marjorie Hillis, if she doesn't have a good time, living "gaily and graciously," it's nobody's fault but her own.

Miss Hillis, who has been making observations about extra women and studying their problems for several years, has worked out a series of rules or technique for them and has put all her findings together in a book to be published shortly under the title "Live Alone and Like It."

"Extra women are a problem," she says, "even when they're as alluring as Peggy Joyce. They're a problem to their married friends who must provide extra men for dinner parties and bridge opponents. And they're a problem to themselves, too."

How to Live Alone Pleasantly

Here are some of her maxims for unattached females:

"The old-fashioned notion that solitary women are objects of charity was killed in the war.

"Be a Communist, a stamp collector or a Ladies' Aid worker if you must, but, for heaven's sake, be something.

"Being Spartan becomes pointless when there is no one to watch the performance.

"It is the lady who expects orchids who gets them.

"If even the most respectable spinsters would regard their bedrooms as places where anything might happen, the resulting effect would be most beneficial."

Better At It Than Men

Women, Miss Hillis thinks, manage the business of living alone better than men, "although some men do amazingly well." She didn't get to work with scientific charts and surveys in collecting material for her book, but she did make observations in New York, Hollywood and the middle west, and there are many "case histories" included.

In all these places, she says, extra women seem to have about the same problems—how to combine keeping a home and a job; how to make friends and entertain them—particularly on a small salary; how to make budgets to pay for seasons at the beauty salon as well as the rent and groceries.

When the woman alone sets up an establishment for herself and operates it successfully, it's a boon to everyone concerned, Miss Hillis thinks. She says it develops self-reliance, a quality of which she thinks highly.

"Standing on your own feet," she explains, "is extraordinarily exhilarating, and being able to do very well (when it is necessary) without your friends, relatives and beaux—makes you feel surprisingly benign toward all of them."

Aloneness Requires Technique

She decided to write her book because some of the live-aloners she has met "do it so well and others so badly." She thinks, too, that there is a technique about living alone successfully, just as there is about doing anything else well.

Miss Hillis is the daughter of the late Rev. Dwight Newell Hillis, successor of Henry Ward Beecher as pastor of Plymouth Congregational church in Brooklyn Heights, N. Y. She was born in Peoria, Ill., went as a small child to live in Chicago and then to Brooklyn Heights. Educated at a private girls' school, she spent a year abroad, returning home to apply for a position on the magazine "Vogue," on which today she holds an important executive post.

She lives alone, admits that she likes it very much indeed. Her Manhattan apartment, near the East river, is charmingly furnished with antique and modern furnishings. The living room gives a striking impression of light and spaciousness, with an abundance of ivy and other growing plants. One inconsistency the author admits. She advises others to acquire hobbies but hasn't any herself. "I don't seem to find time for hobbies," she says. "Live Alone and Like It" is the book Miss Hillis has written. It hasn't any idea when she'll ask another or what it will be about.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
ANN HAMILTON, pretty young actress in a large business dress, went to a travel agency to book a trip for her two-week vacation.
Bill Ware, travel bureau employee, persuaded her to go to Lake Racin. Bill is obviously attracted by Ann, but she gives him little thought.
Ann goes to the mountain resort and at first is lonely. Then she meets RABBIT SPRING, head boatman, who tells her he is not interested in girls. Ralph introduces her to JIMMY KIRBY, wealthy playboy. Jimmy is handsome and attentive. Ann tries to persuade him to do something special with his life but he laughs at this. She also meets LEBITY FORD, married but flirtatious.
Bill Ware arrives at Lake Racin and is annoyed to find Ann with so many other admirers.
Ann spends a day sailing with Jimmy and he asks her to make a weekend trip to Canada. She says "No."
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

On the tenth day of her vacation Ann suggested to Bill that they climb the highest peak, Mt. Racine. It was an all-day trip, and was considered a dangerous climb. One had to use crampons and ropes on the upper reaches of the mountain.

They were all morning reaching the foot of the rocky portion of the climb. They lunched from their rucksacks at the last lean-to, and after a short rest resumed the arduous work among the precipices. Above them lay the spiny peak, topped by an ominous black cloud—the ridge which led to it like the horny ridges of a dinosaur's back.

Toward 3 o'clock they reached the summit of the mountain, where a cold wind from the north whipped them mercilessly. It was so strong that they had to cling to the rocks with their hands, lying down for a view of the surrounding ranges of mountains and hills. The black clouds were lowering all about them now. Intermittent flashes of lightning broke the darkness above them.

AFTER 10 minutes at the top they started down. Once, when the thunder crashed loudly in their ears, Ann drew close to Bill. Her hands shook a little, and she clung to his wrists. It steadied her.

"Steady!" he said. "You're safer here than down in the valley."

But when she looked at him she realized the danger the storm held out to them on the jagged rocks below. They were half way down the rocky climb when the storm broke. In a few seconds Ann was drenched, and the water was pouring in rivulets from rock to rock.

Bill strove manfully to keep them from slipping; he braced himself when Ann was descending the rocky ledges. There was but one thought in their minds now—to reach the lean-to halfway down the mountain. There was no longer any thought of reaching the valley before dark.

In that moment of danger, she came to see Bill Ware for what he really was. She had no doubt that he was in love with her. He had told her so, time and time again. He had always been confident of proving his love for her.

Now he was proving his love for her. Perhaps it was merely the instinct of a man who wants to protect the thing that is dear or necessary to him, but to Ann at this time Bill was like one of those knights in shining armor. Bill Ware, whom she had seen every week for six years in a city office. Facing the hazards of the mountains, he was like a young savage.

BUT Bill had found himself now. He had seen his kid brother through high school, and his responsibilities had waned. He had a job that he liked, and had earned a raise. Now he was willing to fall in love. He was looking around for the girl, and Ann was the girl.

She was less of Jaime now, for he complained of his daily losses on the races. He stayed in the future little betting room all day long, trying to recuperate.

The winds shrieked and howled. The waters poured over them, soaking Ann to the skin. But before the blackness of the night came down they reached the log lean-to, and pushed inside, safe from the wind and rain at last. There was no thought of reaching the valley that night. The mountain stream below them was swollen, and its roar reached their ears above the fury of the storm.

AS soon as Bill had caught his breath, he wrapped a handkerchief over his bleeding hands and looked about them for something with which to build a fire. There was always wood in the lean-to. Bill found matches and paper, and quickly had the fireplace aglow. He took off his own boots, to dry them.

Ann was wet to the skin. She disrobed in the woodshed and handed out her clothes to Bill to dry. She donned a pair of trousers and an old, seedy coat someone had left there, and came out to help tend the blaze.

They both looked like castaways on the beach when they dined on the remnants of their rucksack lunches. Ann brewed tea, and the warm liquid took away their chill. The interior of the lean-to became warm and comfortable, and there was plenty of fuel to feed the fire all night long.

Barefoot, they sat before the burning logs, and watched the sparks fly up the chimney. There was so much to be said that nothing was said. Bill smoked his pipe and watched her, not too closely, speaking in hushed monosyllables. Ann leaned back against a bunk and stared at the flames.

"Happy?" he said. She nodded her head sleepily.

"Afraid?" "Not any more."

They looked into the flames, both joyously content with the world, while the elements raged outside. Bill didn't try to tell her of his love. He merely looked after her comfort, and told her trivial, meaningless incidents in his life. She liked to hear him talk; his voice tonight was like a caress.

At 10 o'clock she crawled into one of the bunks and went fast asleep.

Bill sat moodily before the fire, smoking the tobacco he had salvaged from the rain. He was a little worried about what the gossip at the hotel would say. It might have been the heavy draughts of tea that kept him awake. But when the storm had abated and the first streaks of dawn blazed over the mountain-side, he was still sitting there before the fire, watching over Ann. (To Be Continued)

Pork Shortage in Nation Is Certain

Effect of Midwestern Drouth Now Recognized as "Very Severe"

CHICAGO.—(AP)—A pork shortage in the United States was threatened over the week-end as Western farmers held their corn for fancy drouth prices. Hogs have been hurried to market in "much larger" numbers than usual for the last month, shippers reported, and higher prices this winter or next year were foreseen as a result.

There is no longer any question that drouth damage to the corn crop will be very severe. J. Edward Wynne, one of the leading provisions specialists on the Board of Trade, explained, "Confident that prices will rise to fancy heights (September futures were quoted at $1.07 5-8 a bushel on Saturday) the farmers are holding back their corn to sell rather than use it as feed."

"They know they will get a good price without running feeding risks."

Pork prices were firm, Wynne continued, and in the rush to cash in on the drouth from both ends, hog growers were getting rid of sows which had not yet farrowed.

The specialist said this trend would create a pig shortage next year similar to the one the New Deal's crop control program brought in 1935. Five million pigs were killed then.

Wynne asserted "I don't see how you can stop" a rise in prices of not only pork, but beef and lamb, although it might not come "for six, seven or eight months."

He pointed out that Uncle Sam was already importing hams from Poland and beef from the Argentine.

The pork shortage threat rose as farmers and grain brokers waited anxiously for the federal government's estimates of the grain crop as of August 1. The figures were to be made public tomorrow afternoon.

What they would be, no one had any idea, for the drouth still burned in the grain belt. Weatherman A. W. Cook at Chicago, saw no hope of rain.

Love Follows the Films' Publicity

Players Pick Up Morning Paper to See Who's to Be Their "Next"

By ROBBIN COONS
Associated Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.—Off-stage romance in Hollywood is a year-around phenomenon, requiring no vernal equinox to stir up thoughts of love.

Here where the stage is broader by far than these barn-like buildings equipped with sound devices and cameras, the natural urge is fostered by publicity, press agency and gossip.

One actress the other day picked up the morning paper and turned to the gossip column eagerly. "I've got to see who my sweetheart is today—and meet him," she said flippantly.

Love Often Short-Lived
A comparatively rare culmination to filmland romance occurred the other day when Allan Jones and Irene Hervey were married. Anywhere else marriage can be fairly reliably expected as the sequel to romance, but in Hollywood young love frequently lasts only as long as the gossip is interested.

Of course young love, here as everywhere else, is not a thing to entangle and dismiss as either "the real thing" or "just publicity."

Sometimes it is one, sometimes the other, and quite often it is both. But it takes a statistician even for the simpler task of keeping straight on "who's going with whom."

Until Allan Jones came along, it was Robert Taylor who squired Irene Hervey places. Now it is Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, and "the Allan craze" the natural urge is fostered by publicity, press agency and gossip.

distant now. They say it's the "thing" between Anne Shirley Cwen Davis, Jr., but Anne has been "rushed" by countless swains.

'Last Minute'

Mis-Leading Circulars

In his circular to the voters of this district, intentionally distributed at the last moment to prevent answer by his opponent, Mr. Kitchens charges that two years ago he was denounced as having voted to tax washwomen and wood choppers, and against the farmers.

I read his legislative record to the people two years ago. That record is public property. He made it. I had nothing to do with its making.

In 1929 a bill was introduced to give those who were foreclosed under mortgage in Chancery Courts one year to redeem their lands. He says that is the law already. That is not true. Large bond and mortgage companies held millions of dollars of farm mortgages in which the mortgagor had waived the right of redemption and Section 7411, Crawford & Moses digest, provides that upon foreclosure of such mortgages in Chancery Court, there shall be no redemption.

The land bank and farm mortgage companies did not want the bill, which would have relieved farmers of this state from the rigors of the law. They had a lobby working against that bill and Kitchens voted against the bill. (H. J.—1929, page 880.) That was a vote for corporate wealth against the farmers of the state.

H. B. number 47 was a bill to prevent telephone, water, gas and electric light companies from charging penalties or fees for discontinuing or renewing service. It was fought by all utility companies. They wanted the right to increase their profits by penalties exacted from the customers both ways, opening an account with them and closing an account with them. The practice is unjust. No merchant charges a customer for opening an account or closing it. The utility companies had a powerful lobby in the legislature to defeat the bill and Kitchens voted to defeat the bill. (H. J. 1929, page 588.) That was a vote for corporate wealth against the consumer and the people."

S. B. Number 388, "The Infamous Omnibus Bill," the first fifty-one sections of which defined every kind of work, trade, or employment as a privilege and taxed a man for working at his trade. The woodchopper or washwoman was taxed for working at that trade. His artful dodging in trying to switch it to the income tax is contradicted by the record. He says that they had to make $1500.00 if single, or $2500.00, if married, before they paid a cent. THAT IS NOT TRUE. See act 63, Acts of Arkansas, 1929, the first fifty-one sections of which was later repealed. The income tax provision gives an exemption of $1500.00 to single persons and $2500.00 to married persons. He wants to confuse the people between the privilege tax and the income tax. THE BOND HOLDERS WANTED THE OMNIBUS BILL. IT WOULD HAVE TAXED EVERY LABORER IN THE STATE. HE VOTED FOR IT. (H. J. 1929, page 837.) HE VOTED FOR CORPORATE GREED AND AGAINST THE WORKING MAN.

H. B. Number 175 was a bill to reduce taxes on farm land, and provided farm relief and encouraged agriculture in the State of Arkansas. It would have prevented foreclosure of hundreds of thousands of acres of land on which farmers were unable to pay taxes. The bond companies holding Arkansas bonds demanded their pound of flesh

The journal of the proceedings of the legislature are a better record than his circulars distributed at the last hour of the campaign by people in cars with Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma licenses. He has not shown one vote, where corporate wealth and the interest of the people conflicted, where he voted for the people and against corporate wealth.

He says the Root Petroleum Company has bought from the State of Arkansas thousands of acres of land for $1.00 an acre. I have nothing whatever to do with the Root Refining Company, but it could not have bought those lands from the state if Kitchens had voted and worked for that tax bill, which would have prevented the foreclosure, of this land to the state and created a condition whereby the Root Petroleum Company was enabled to buy this land.

On pages two and three of this circular he assumes the role of Interlocutor and End-Man and with his usual indifference to truth, gives wrong answers to his own questions. Many of them are so silly as to disgust the people and the statements made in that circular are contradicted by his own votes.

He has a long tirade in that circular saying that Parks accused me of many things in the last campaign. I will answer that with a letter that HE ADDRESSED TO COLONEL T. H. BARTON, of the Lion Oil Refining Company, when he was trying to get the oil vote. In that letter of August 22, 1934, he says:

"Our Congressman was very unfair and guilty of misrepresentation against every one of his opponents. He deliberately and willfully misrepresented Judge Marsh. I have the record of Judge Marsh and find Parks' statements were absolutely false. I feel that the country has come to a pretty pass when a Congressman with fourteen years service must resort to abuse and untruthful statements in order to boost his candidacy rather than to stand boldly and courageously upon his record."

(Signed) Your Friend: WADE KITCHENS.

In that circular, a dirty insinuation that I am obligated to the oil companies of Arkansas for my election expenses, which he knows is false, he assumes that I would do what he has already done, and agree to do anything for the oil companies that they wanted. I have said on every stump that if he could show where I was obligated to one oil company, I would quit the race.

Let us read Wade Kitchens' letter to the Lion Oil Refining Company, Exchange Bank Building, El Dorado, Arkansas, Attention Colonel T. H. Barton, in the closing paragraphs of which he says:

"I am sure that problems will arise from time to time with the oil industry of this district and I pledge you that if I am elected to Congress, I will advise with the independent oil operators of my district and be governed largely, if not wholly, in my policies with reference to the oil situation by their recommendations and the recommendations of their committees."

I am not writing this letter solely for your support but to advise you as to my position on a subject which is of vital interest to you; but if you can give me your support in this race it will be greatly appreciated."

(Signed) Sincerely Yours: WADE KITCHENS.

That is an absolute promise to the oil companies that he will, if elected to Congress, lay down and take their dictation. He seems to be unable to imagine that a man could be in a race and not do anything on earth to get votes, therefore, having violated the law and violated his pledge by making promises to special interests for their vote, he assumes that I would do the same thing.

Please tell me why the oil interests would be for me, when he has pledged his soul and services to do their dictation, if he is elected. And he doesn't deny writing that letter to the oil companies here.

When I go to Congress my hands will not be tied. I will do my own thinking, make my own decisions, and vote my own convictions.

Wade Kitchens is already sold and pledged to the oil companies—as proven by his own letters. He promises to do anything they want in his letters to them. He denounces them in his circulars to the voters about them.

Yours Sincerely,
NEILL C. MARSH,
Candidate for Congress.

Girl's Marriage Sends 43 to Jail

Aftermath of Riot in Which Three Died and Many Were Injured

NABOJ, Yugoslavia.—(AP)—Forty-three persons of this little south Serbian community are serving prison sentences totaling 50 years as a result of a girl's plans for marriage.

Despite her parents' orders, the beautiful 18-year-old girl named Derwisch determined to marry a poor youth from the neighboring village Potrebna and planned that he should carry her off when Naboj men were at church.

This happened, and the angered Nabojers armed and stormed Potrebna. A battle ensued in which two men were killed and several wounded before Derwisch was captured and returned to Naboj. Forty-five men were subsequently tried, but two were acquitted as acting in self-defense.

Hope Man Kills Deer at CCC Camp in California

Killing the first deer of the season in the mountains of California was an honor that went to Lieutenant J. E. Schooley of Co. 3700, Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), at Camp Big Sur, California, friends here learned Monday. Lieutenant Schooley is a Hempstead county man.

Repeal the Thorn Liquor Law

The Unfairest Law Ever Placed on the Statute Books of Arkansas

The wets have their orders from headquarters and will take us to a worse, if possible, cleaning if we vote them in. If we must have liquor make the wets vote it in. Get a law that will compel the sale of liquor in daylight hours only. Grocery and other stores close at 6 o'clock. Take Beer out of Hotels and Cafes. It's no longer beer as beer anyway. You cannot now buy 3.2 beer. Repeal the horse and dog racing laws. Gambling is the worst vice on earth. Men should be ashamed to try to get something for nothing. Vote for men who will represent us instead of themselves. Clark won't do it. Monroe won't do it. They never did. What man has done, he will reasonably do again.

Respectfully,

Hempstead Home Agent

Mock Olives

Mock olives are easily made and are finding a place on the menu accessible in Hempstead County home dairies. These little "extras" do not have very much food value but their pungent flavor and attractive appearance add a pleasing variety to everyday meals and keeps them from being commonplace.

Mrs. Ruby Mendenhall Smith, extension economist in food preservation, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, gives her recipe for mock olives, which may be made for home use from plums that are just beginning to ripen, but which are still green. After the fruit has been examined very carefully, and every bruise, blemish, or blemished plum has been discarded, wash them thoroughly. Cover with a hot brine made by dissolving one pound of salt in 9 pints of soft water which has been previously boiled. Allow the fruit to stand in this brine for 36 hours, then drain well. Cover the plums with fresh brine and boil for one minute. Drain and pack them into hot small sterilized jars. Fill the jars with hot, fresh brine, seal and process pint jars for 30 minutes at simmering temperature.

Camp Pike
Arkansas National Guard Camp will to feminine September 1-4 when 1,200 Arkansas home demonstration club women will celebrate their fourth Annual Farm Women's Rest Camp.

All 15 counties in the state are now selecting delegates for their home demonstration club groups. This new "army" of homemakers have set a precedent never seen before in the United States, the use of a National Guard Camp for rural women. The camp is organized along the same lines used by the regular National Guard training camps, with the National Guard officers of Arkansas assisting to see that these "new recruits" are comfortably fed and "tented."

Social and economic factors affecting rural life will be the theme of the 1938 program and many outstanding speakers are expected to be on the program. Recreational events such as a song contest, swimming, and dramatics are also planned for the camp.

Sandy, who owned a picture theater in Aberdeen, went to London to get some new ideas on advertising. While in London he noticed a sign over a movie house which read: All persons over 80 admitted free.

"Just the thing," he thought to himself.

After his return to Aberdeen he put this sign over his theater box office:

"All persons over 80 years of age will be admitted free—if accompanied by their parents."

Brighton, England, hasn't had a single case of banditry since police patrols were equipped with pocket wireless receiving sets.

Ed. F. McDonald

is the Only Candidate for GOVERNOR

WHO PROPOSES

1. That the state take over the entire operating expenses of the Agricultural Extension Service in all counties. This includes payment of salaries of County Agents and Home Demonstration Agents.

This will save each county in Arkansas from $2,000 to $5,000 a year.

2. That the state pay the entire operating expenses of the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Booneville. At the present time 14 counties in Arkansas are legally unable to secure hospitalization of patients in the Tuberculosis Sanatorium because these counties are unable to pay the weekly charge demanded of counties for each patient.

It is criminal neglect to deny sufferers of tuberculosis admittance to this splendid institution because counties are unable to pay fees, and when I become governor I propose to make the sanatorium strictly state supporting.

3. The establishment of an active, honorary commission as a state agency to closely follow and develop federal co-operation in:

- Flood control.
- Payment of maximum of old age pensions.
- Aid to dependent children.
- Aid to dependent mothers.
- Aid to blind.
- Agricultural relief.
- Forestry work.

4. Refunding of school district bonds along the same lines as followed by the meritorious Refunding Program of Highway and Road Improvement District Bonds.

To Mr. BAILEY

From Governor Futrell

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

You have asked me a number of questions. The answers follow:

The suggestion that I double-crossed Ashley is false.

In answer to your question with reference to Ed McDonald, I have said from the very beginning that because of your unfitness for the position of Governor any man in the race was preferable to you.

I did not tell the Bank Commissioner that I was going to get Cook in the race for Governor.

So far as I know, there are no judges meddling in McDonald's campaign for Governor, but I understand you have an eastern Arkansas Chancery Judge who is very active in your campaign.

I have never said I was opposed to old age pensions. If I had been, I would not have signed the old age pension bill, by which it became a law.

I have never said one word from which it could be implied that I opposed free education above the eighth grade.

I have some relatives on the state pay roll just as you have, and they are qualified to do the work; but Mr. McDonald has made no promise that they will be continued in these places, and I shall never ask him or anyone who may be Governor to appoint them or any other person to any position in the State Government.

I have no knowledge that any employee in the State Government has been assessed for political purposes. If it can be proven that assessments were made by any employee appointed by me, they will be summarily dealt with. I understand that many employees, including yours, have made voluntary contributions to candidates in several races.

There is no vacancy in the Supreme Court in prospect. Why do you ask such a question? I have never applied to a Governor for a position of any kind in my life and never will, and I will have no understanding with any candidate for Governor that I be appointed to any place. I don't believe in that character of business. A candidate, if he is elected, should be left free to do what he thinks is best in matters that come up before him.

QUESTIONS

Now, Mr. Bailey, I will ask you a few questions.

Why did you confess to a violation of your oath of office when you had rendered an opinion which you knew not to be the law?

Why did you pretend that you were offered a $50,000 bribe in the Luciano case, when you knew that any man with half sense would know that you could be of no service to Luciano in keeping him from going back to New York? You knew that the writ of the Governor only could take him out of this state.

Why didn't you tell who it was that offered you the bribe, have him indicted and put in the penitentiary? Why don't you just tell the man's name that offered you the bribe. Will you do that?

Why did you select Oklahoma lawyers instead of Arkansas lawyers to bring the back tax suits against fraternal insurance companies to recover a million, five hundred thousand dollars? Why didn't you bring the suit yourself and save the state a hundred or two hundred fifty thousand dollars, or whatever amount of fees was to be allowed to special attorneys?

Why have you appointed, directly or indirectly, more than 150 attorneys when you were elected on a platform in your race against General Norwood not to do so?

Why did you bring suit to stop racing in Hot Springs in a court which had no jurisdiction? Was this done for political effect?

You said you are a man of action. There was a judgment when you came into office against Claude Duty for $5,000. Why haven't you collected it? He is solvent.

This same man, Claude Duty, was an assistant attorney general, and rendered opinions under which the cost plus contracts made by D. Blackwood were made, by which the state lost millions of dollars. The court held these contracts were void.

Why did you not prosecute indictments returned against Blackwood, Christian, Blackwood's engineer, and others? Why did you not give a jury a chance to say whether they were guilty or not?

Why was it that you caused Adams, the county clerk, to be indicted and then repeatedly asked the Grand Jury to withdraw that indictment? After the Grand Jury refused your request, didn't you nolle prosequere or dismiss the case? Why did you do it?

Why did you, through your 75 especially appointed attorneys, appointed either by you or your appointee, bring suits to quiet titles at this time, knowing that when a title is quieted by decree under the present law the land is gone forever? Why didn't you wait until the people were in better shape to redeem their lands from tax sales?

Did you want these 75 attorney agents to be active in electing you Governor? What contributions, if any, did these attorneys make to your campaign?

Do you deny that D. Blackwood was recently in conference with you in your rooms in the McGehee hotel?

Do you deny that Blackwood was in your campaign headquarters on Sunday, August 2?

Do you deny that Lan Williams, Blackwood's brother-in-law, and nephew, Frank Williams, have been openly supporting you in Mississippi county for more than two weeks?

Do you know that members of your organization have contacted employees at the statehouse with reference to going for Bailey, assuring them that they will keep their jobs?

Do you deny that Charles Christian, Blackwood's former chief engineer, has been working for you in Miller county?

Were you not deputy or prosecuting attorney while the so-called Blackwood gang wasted several million dollars of highway funds in this state, as disclosed by the highway audit? You had a fund a part of the time to make investigations. If you are a man of action, why didn't you find out about this and stop it before it was too late?

Why did you settle for $12,000 a lawsuit by the state against a bonding company to recover $50,000? Why didn't you let the suit go to trial and collect the full sum?

Now, Mr. Bailey, you realize that Ed McDonald is gaining ground daily and is going to win by a big majority—that daily you are losing ground in this race. You also know that Mr. Bob Cook is a good man, but hasn't a chance to win this race, so the citizens of this state who believe in good government are going to vote for Ed McDonald Tuesday.

McDonald Will Protect Arkansas

Arkansas' future is at stake.

In 1932 Arkansas' credit had been destroyed by the old wrecking crew that had pillaged the Treasury, plunged the State hopelessly into debt and destroyed the confidence of the people in State Government. Rural schools were closed; State warrants could not be cashed, and the obligations of the state were unacceptable.

Arkansas has progressed during the Futrell Administration. The State expenses have been cut in half. Old debts left by the wrecking crew have been paid. The State Refunding Act, which Ed McDonald helped to administer as a member of the Board, has reestablished the state's credit, saved $31,250,000.00 in interest alone on highway bonds, restored value to our obligations, reopened schools and restored complete confidence of the people in its government.

This Progress Must Continue

Arkansas will elect Ed F. McDonald Governor. He has pledged himself to carry on this program without interruption. He offers the people of Arkansas a platform of progress. He has proposed definite measures to further the best interests of all people. His platform and policies are acceptable, as constructive by hardworking, fair-thinking citizens, who recognize Ed F. McDonald as an executive capable of making Arkansas one of its greatest governors. He will protect the best interest of Arkansas.

Constructive Policies

Arkansas cannot afford to turn the management of its affairs over to the same predatory interest that once bankrupted the state and seek to return to power through a candidate whose unsound doctrines are screened by political bunk and ballyhoo.

ED F. McDONALD PROPOSES:

1. That the State take over the entire operating expenses of the Agricultural Extension Service in all counties. This includes payment of salaries of County Agents and Home Demonstration Agents.
2. That the state pay the entire operating expenses of the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Booneville. At the present time 14 counties in Arkansas are legally unable to secure hospitalization of patients in the Tuberculosis Sanatorium because these counties are unable to pay the weekly charge demanded of counties for each patient. It is criminal neglect to deny sufferers of tuberculosis admittance to this splendid institution because counties are unable to pay fees, and when I become governor I propose to make the sanatorium strictly State supported.
3. The establishment of an active, honorary commission as a State agency to closely follow and develop federal co-operation in:
 - a. Flood control.
 - b. Payment of maximum of old age pensions.
 - c. Aid to dependent children.
 - d. Aid to dependent mothers.
 - e. Aid to blind.
 - f. Agricultural relief.
4. Refunding of school district bonds along the same lines as followed by the meritorious Refunding Program of Highway and Road Improvement District Bonds.
5. A continuance of the Bond Refunding program.
6. The Sales Tax for the purpose of paying Old Age Pensions, and for the support of the schools.

WARNING!

The opponents of Ed F. McDonald are making futile attempts to stop his inevitable victory by diverting attention from the issues of the campaign to circulation of last minute propaganda. It should be understood that any candidate with enough money can buy a printing press, and citizens are warned to disregard last minute attacks.

BAILEY SURRENDERS

That candidate Carl Bailey recognizes his defeat is seen in his move to belaud the issues of the campaign and to divert attention from the principles and policies advocated by McDonald. He trumped up charges in Crittenden county, stating that the election machinery was controlled by McDonald supporters. Judge G. E. Keck denied his application for a writ in Crittenden county. There is nothing wrong there except that Eastern Arkansas is solidly behind McDonald.

The headquarters of Ed F. McDonald has received hundreds of telephone calls and telegrams from every county in Arkansas, stating that the McDonald tide of victory would reach an unprecedented majority.

It is now apparent that the clean campaign conducted by Mr. McDonald and the sound principles of government he advocates have found universal favor with the citizenship of Arkansas.

Refunding Plan Plea Sounded by Futrell In Backing McDonald

Little Rock, Aug. 8.—Declaring completion of the state's refunding program vitally important to Arkansas, and Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald best suited as governor to carry out this and other Futrell administration policies, Governor Futrell today proclaimed himself solidly behind McDonald's candidacy and said he "will remain unchanged until the last vote is cast."

The governor's statement followed a radio address Thursday night in which he said the candidacy of Mr. McDonald had his full approval. In his statement today Governor Futrell emphasized the necessity of carrying on the state's bond refunding program.

"Plans have already been worked out to this end," the governor said, "and they are understood by McDonald. If the confidence of the commercial world is once shaken, the possibility of funding these bonds goes out of the picture. Importance of this matter should appeal to all thinking people."

"I know that McDonald thoroughly understands the policies that retrieved this State from its terrible conditions in 1933. He appreciates the overpowering necessity that these policies must not be abandoned or else the State will go rapidly backward."
